

In a world where we have so little control over our everyday lives, it is imperative that it is illegal to interrupt the one time in the day when a family can catch up with what each of them is doing. If I need products, services, I will look for them myself, during my time and my schedule